Success Stories | Khwaish*, despite having faced abuse and dire financial hardship, is finding her voice

Khwaish's mother, a domestic worker, shoulders the financial responsibility of managing their family of three as a single parent. When Khwaish came to Protsahan, she lacked basic school supplies and even had broken spectacles held together with tape.

We invited Khwaish to join our girl empowerment center, providing for her nutritional needs and scholarship support. Withdrawn and visibly under emotional duress, Khwaish eventually confided in Samina, a Youth Peer Leader, about her experience with child sexual abuse.

Through art-as-therapy workshops, Khwaish is healing. She now actively participates in class, shares struggles with trusted adults, and speaks with increased confidence and self-worth. With determination, she is studying hard and making plans for her future. Khwaish's progress is a testament to her strength, and it inspires us to continue our work with our best efforts.
